01. Empowering Global Eco-Leaders: The World Ocean Day Youth Advisory Council

DONOR: World Ocean Day

Our editorial team is closely following an exceptional international opportunity designed to champion young environmental advocates who are actively protecting our blue planet. This annual initiative gathers a cohort of twenty to twenty-five passionate individuals from diverse global backgrounds to amplify their ongoing community conservation efforts on both local and international stages. Participants collaborate closely on critical intersectional issues connecting ocean health and climate action, while sharpening their core leadership, campaign organizing, and advocacy skill sets. Throughout a comprehensive one-year term, council members engage in regular virtual meetings, complete advisory surveys, participate in structured leadership training sessions, and contribute meaningfully to collaborative regional projects. In return, organizing bodies provide robust capacity-building support, onboarding, and global visibility through newsletters, conference invitations, media spotlights, and summit participation. To qualify, candidates must be aged sixteen to twenty-five, possess internet access, demonstrate English fluency, and bring prior grassroots experience in conservation or advocacy. This network offers an inspiring platform for emerging environmental champions to scale their impact and drive collective ecological stewardship worldwide.

02. Bridging Digital Frontiers: The Global Youth Leadership Program Call

DONOR: World Internet Conference

Our team highlights a prestigious professional development call tailored for emerging trailblazers operating within the international internet sector, technology industry, and digital governance spheres. This initiative is structured around three core pillars—forums, specialized training, and cutting-edge research—designed to build a robust international exchange platform for the next generation of digital policymakers and innovators. Selected delegates gain exclusive access to high-profile summits where they can engage directly with prominent global internet leaders, senior officials from international organizations, and renowned academic scholars. The overarching curriculum equips participants with advanced professional capabilities, strengthens their global outlook, and incorporates youth-led research directly into international consensus-building mechanisms. Accepted candidates receive comprehensive logistical support covering round-the-clock accommodation, catering, and international travel to high-level governance forums. Furthermore, participants unlock valuable opportunities to organize specialized thematic workshops, contribute practical outcomes to official collections, and secure priority consideration for prestigious internships and employment pathways within leading international organizations.

03. Catalyzing Social Impact: The Flagship Young Leaders Summit Scholarship

DONOR: One Young World

Our research desk draws attention to a premier global scholarship opportunity created to ensure inclusive, diverse participation at one of the world's most influential annual gatherings for young social changemakers. Aimed at exceptional individuals aged eighteen to thirty-five, this flagship program recognizes those who demonstrate a steadfast, sustained commitment to tackling pressing local and global challenges through innovative work. Selected scholars gain full, unhindered access to a transformative five-day summit experience held in South Africa, bringing together an expansive international network of thousands of passionate collaborators, mentors, and experts. The comprehensive support package covers all major logistical requirements, including full delegate registration, hotel lodging during the event dates, daily catering, and round-trip air travel. Beyond attending high-level leadership discussions and networking sessions, recipients unlock exclusive ambassadorial opportunities, regional peer connections, and enhanced visibility for their ongoing social initiatives. It serves as an invaluable springboard for dedicated change-makers seeking to scale their community-driven solutions on an international stage.

04. Honoring Community Change-Makers: The Spirit of Togetherness Award

DONOR: One Young World GRANT SIZE: $1000 to $10,000

Our editorial staff spotlights a collaborative global award initiative created to celebrate and uplift young leaders who are actively fostering social connection, inclusivity, and cohesion within their communities. This recognition program specifically targets grassroots efforts that cultivate joyful shared experiences, bridge diverse demographic groups—such as intergenerational, multicultural, and differently-abled populations—and promote cultural togetherness through local heritage. An international partnership evaluates candidates worldwide to select five outstanding young leaders whose community-driven initiatives demonstrate measurable impact, scalability, and inclusion. Each recognized honoree receives vital financial support to expand their local projects, alongside fully-covered attendance at a premier global leadership summit in South Africa. This comprehensive attendance package includes travel assistance, event accommodation, daily meals, and local transit during the conference dates. Eligible applicants must meet legal drinking age requirements in their home countries and are encouraged to highlight environmental sustainability or innovative practices alongside their core social mission.

05. Fueling Non-Traditional Paths: The Thiel Fellowship for Young Innovators

DONOR: Thiel Fellowship GRANT SIZE: $100,000 to $500,000

Our editorial team brings forward a distinctive entrepreneurial fellowship designed specifically for ambitious young builders, researchers, and creators who choose to forge new paths outside of conventional higher education. This intensive opportunity invites individuals aged twenty-two and younger who do not hold a university degree to focus full-time on launching novel ventures, advancing scientific research, or building impactful technologies. While applicants currently enrolled in college may apply, successful candidates must step away from their academic studies to fully dedicate themselves to their chosen projects during a rigorous two-year term. Fellows receive substantial financial backing distributed across the fellowship duration, paired with unrestricted access to an elite, global network of founders, investors, scientists, and industry partners. Crucially, the administering foundation takes zero equity in the participants' companies, ensuring founders retain full ownership of their burgeoning enterprises. Candidates are evaluated primarily on the tangible progress they have made toward their ambitious visions, making this an ideal launchpad for independent young visionaries.

06. Investigating Transparency: The Young Journalist Programme for Anti-Corruption

DONOR: International Anti-Corruption Conference

Our team features a specialized professional development opportunity tailored for early-career media professionals worldwide who are deeply committed to reporting on transparency, governance, and corruption-related issues. Selected participants join an immersive, mentored reporting experience at a major international anti-corruption conference held in the Dominican Republic, offering direct access to global leaders, activists, and pressing policy dialogues. The comprehensive support package includes economy return airfare, multi-night hotel lodging with full meal coverage, and prior-approved visa processing fee reimbursements. Prior to the event, participants receive structured online briefing preparation, followed by on-ground guidance from dedicated program coordinators throughout the conference. Ten positions are open to journalists under the age of thirty-five who possess active media experience, English proficiency, and a demonstrated portfolio covering social, political, or economic affairs. Upon completion of the event, fellows are required to produce at least one original report and successfully pitch it to an established media outlet, helping bring critical accountability stories to light.

07. Empowering Youth Eco-Leaders: The True Blue Fellowship

DONOR: Bow Seat: Creative Action for Conservation GRANT SIZE: $1000 to $10,000

Our editorial team is excited to highlight an exceptional opportunity for young changemakers who are channeling creative arts into grassroots environmental action. The True Blue Fellowship supports emerging, youth-led initiatives that tackle critical climate challenges affecting oceans and waterways at the local level. Designed for individuals, groups, or organizations launching projects less than two years old, this initiative offers vital financial backing alongside peer mentorship and capacity-building. Eligible applicants worldwide between the ages of 16 and 24 can apply, provided they are comfortable communicating and collaborating in English. Selected fellows gain the resources needed to scale their leadership potential while driving tangible conservation awareness and community engagement. By merging creative expression with direct ecological protection, this program empowers the next generation of environmental stewards to make a lasting difference in their home regions.

08. Spotighting Investigative Excellence: The Young Journalist Award

DONOR: Thomson Foundation

Our research team draws attention to a prestigious journalism prize dedicated to celebrating courageous reporting and public accountability across the globe. Conceived to honor exceptional young reporters whose work exposes social issues and challenges power structures, this opportunity is open to journalists aged 30 and younger residing in countries with specified economic thresholds. Applicants must submit a comprehensive three-piece portfolio spanning print, audio, video, or multimedia formats produced over the preceding year. Submissions must include verbatim English translations where necessary, alongside verification letters from current editors or academic mentors. Each entered story also requires a concise summary highlighting its real-world impact on public discourse. This program serves as a crucial platform for amplifying fearless investigative voices and recognizing original reporting that shapes society.

09. Championing Responsible Social Culture: The Pernod Ricard Scholarship

DONOR: One Young World

Our editorial staff features a unique leadership opportunity focused on fostering safer, more inclusive, and balanced community environments. This fully funded initiative identifies a dedicated cohort of emerging leaders committed to curbing excessive drinking, preventing social isolation, and promoting moderation within social spaces. Designed for changemakers across hospitality, research, community development, and social impact sectors, the program brings selected participants together for a major global summit. Eligible candidates must be of legal drinking age in their home country and actively involved in harm reduction or social inclusion initiatives. Selected delegates receive complete coverage for international travel, accommodation, local transport, and meals, alongside invaluable networking and mentorship with industry professionals. It is an ideal platform for hospitality experts and social researchers working to reshape modern social gatherings.

10. Honoring Global Wildlife Champions: The Future for Nature Awards

DONOR: Future For Nature Foundation GRANT SIZE: $10,000 to $100,000

Our team spotlights a premier international conservation prize dedicated to celebrating young wildlife protectors who achieve measurable, long-term outcomes for threatened species. This initiative recognizes passionate individuals rather than institutions, honoring those who display remarkable leadership, innovation, and determination in safeguarding biodiversity. Eligible candidates must be born within specific age parameters and demonstrate a clear, ongoing commitment to their conservation mission, alongside the ability to communicate their work effectively in English. Winners are celebrated at a high-profile event hosted at a renowned European zoo, with all travel and accommodation expenses fully covered. Beyond receiving substantial financial backing to advance their conservation efforts, recipients gain international visibility and join a prestigious network of dedicated environmental leaders working to protect the natural world.

11. Bridging International Stages: The Theatre Professional Shadowing Programme

DONOR: Goethe-Institut GRANT SIZE: $1000 to $10,000

Our editorial desk features an immersive professional development opportunity that connects international theatre artists with production houses and ensembles across Germany. Tailored for practitioners up to age 40—with a strong preference for applicants from transition regions across Asia, Africa, Latin America, and parts of Europe—this initiative facilitates deep observation of rehearsal processes, staging, and technical production. Participants receive comprehensive financial support covering monthly living expenses, international travel, comprehensive health insurance, and allowances for exploring local theatrical landscapes. Eligible candidates must possess a working knowledge of German, familiarity with local dramatic traditions, and a dedication to sharing their acquired expertise back home. The program heavily encourages sustainable travel practices, favoring rail transport for eligible distances to align professional exchange with environmental responsibility.

12. Celebrating Emerging Lenses: The Sony World Photography Youth Competition

DONOR: World Photography Organisation

Our editorial team directs attention to a renowned, free-to-enter global photography competition designed exclusively for young shutterbugs eager to share their unique visual perspectives with the world. Open to participants aged 19 and under, the program invites aspiring photographers to submit up to response images aligned with a designated annual theme. Shortlisted finalists and the ultimate overall winner gain extraordinary international exposure, including professional digital imaging equipment, inclusion in a widely circulated annual book, and a major exhibition presence. Finalists also secure flights and accommodation to attend a prestigious awards ceremony in London alongside global press features. This competition offers an unmatched springboard for youth to establish their artistic footprint and gain worldwide recognition for their creative storytelling.

13. Spotlighting Excellence in Childhood Disability: The Annual Pursuit Award

DONOR: Holland Bloorview Kids Rehabilitation Hospital Foundation GRANT SIZE: $1000 to $10,000

Our editorial team at Grants For Global is pleased to highlight this prestigious international research accolade, designed specifically to champion doctoral candidates and early-career investigators in the field of pediatric disability. This initiative seeks to elevate rigorous academic inquiry that directly enhances the inclusion, quality of life, and daily participation of children and youth navigating developmental differences, acquired injuries, and broader physical disabilities, alongside their families and support networks. Eligible researchers typically include active PhD students nearing their defense alongside recent postdoctoral fellows and doctoral graduates looking to gain vital exposure for their scholarly contributions. Successful candidates examine critical themes such as pediatric clinical innovation, interdisciplinary care models, knowledge translation strategies, and evidence-based policy reforms aimed at strengthening health systems. Finalists are required to prepare a pre-recorded presentation for a dedicated annual research symposium, offering a unique platform to share their findings with global peers, clinical experts, and community leaders. Selected honorees receive valuable financial prizes to support their ongoing academic endeavors and career progression in this vital medical specialty.

14. Empowering Young Social Entrepreneurs: The Global Innovation Challenge

DONOR: Social Shifters GRANT SIZE: $10,000 to $100,000

At Grants For Global, we continuously track initiatives that unlock potential for the next generation of changemakers, such as this prominent worldwide competition empowering young innovators and founders. The programme is tailored for emerging social entrepreneurs who are actively spearheading impactful projects and early-stage startups aligned with the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals. It targets visionary leaders who want to tackle pressing global issues—ranging from poverty alleviation and environmental sustainability to quality education, gender equality, and clean energy transition. To qualify, young founders must fall within a designated age bracket and maintain majority ownership and decision-making authority within their respective ventures, which can be based anywhere globally outside of restricted financial jurisdictions. Beyond receiving direct financial backing through competitive grant awards, participants unlock invaluable capacity-building assets, including structured founder support, specialized learning materials, and targeted mentorship. Furthermore, the initiative connects grantees to an extensive international network of peers, fellowships, and collaborative opportunities designed to accelerate long-term project growth and foster enduring social impact.

15. Nurturing Revolutionary Solutions: The Moonshot Platform Idea Grant

DONOR: Moonshot Platform GRANT SIZE: $1000 to $10,000

Our team at Grants For Global recognizes the extraordinary potential of early-stage innovators to reshape society, making this specialized idea grant a compelling opportunity for visionary youth. The programme focuses on unearthing groundbreaking concepts that actively drive forward the global Sustainable Development Goals while tackling complex challenges across the natural sciences, arts, humanities, and technology sectors. It specifically welcomes applicants who possess a working proof of concept, a clear development plan, or an early prototype capable of scaling up into large-scale community or environmental transformation. Young change agents within a specified age range—applying either independently or as part of a collaborative team—are invited to submit their pioneering solutions for consideration, provided their initiatives have not yet attracted substantial outside investment. Selected participants are awarded an equity-free financial prize alongside immediate entry into an intensive multi-year acceleration curriculum. This comprehensive support framework encompasses immersive development camps, personalized guidance from world-class mentors, strategic institutional partnerships, and a lifelong network of peers dedicated to solving global problems.

16. Scaling Grassroots Impact: Youth-Led Non-Profit Innovation Awards

DONOR: Moonshot Platform GRANT SIZE: $10,000 to $100,000

For our NGO and non-profit readership at Grants For Global, this dedicated award programme offers a remarkable pathway for grassroots organizations spearheaded by dynamic young leaders. The initiative is built to strengthen early-stage, non-profit entities that address critical community gaps and advance the Sustainable Development Goals through frontline advocacy, direct service delivery, and responsive community action. Eligible applicants must hold a foundational C-suite or leadership role within their organization and meet specific age criteria, ensuring that youth retain primary governance and strategic direction. Organizations that have already secured higher thresholds of external institutional funding are excluded, keeping the focus squarely on emerging, resource-constrained initiatives that demonstrate early success and clear pathways for sustainable growth. Award recipients secure non-dilutive financial support paired with an extensive multi-year acceleration journey. This developmental experience features hands-on mentorship, collaborative peer camps, and access to an influential global community designed to expand long-term organizational capacity and amplify vulnerable community voices.

17. Transforming Healthcare Access: The Moonshot Health Grant for Youth Leaders

DONOR: Moonshot Platform GRANT SIZE: $1000 to $10,000

The Grants For Global editorial desk is eager to share this specialized health-focused award, which targets the next generation of medical visionaries and innovators addressing deep-seated healthcare disparities worldwide. The initiative encourages the creation of breakthrough tools, digital strategies, and novel service delivery models designed to elevate physical and mental well-being across underserved populations. Applicants are encouraged to leverage emerging technological approaches, such as advanced data analytics, to optimize clinical research, streamline remote patient care, and fortify fragile healthcare systems. Young founders, medical practitioners, and scientific researchers within the designated age thresholds—applying individually or collaboratively—are invited to submit their early-stage healthcare interventions. Selected change agents receive non-equity funding coupled with a comprehensive multi-year acceleration experience featuring expert mentorship, leadership development camps, and strategic networking opportunities. By supporting these entrepreneurial solutions, the programme aims to foster a more equitable and inclusive future for global public health delivery.

18. Propelling Impact-Driven Startups: The Youth Startup Innovation Award

DONOR: Moonshot Platform GRANT SIZE: $1000 to $10,000

Our team at Grants For Global regularly features avenues that bridge technology and social enterprise, such as this targeted initiative celebrating youth-led, tech-enabled commercial ventures. The competition focuses on scalable, profit-seeking business models that simultaneously generate measurable environmental and social value in alignment with the Sustainable Development Goals. It is tailored specifically for young founders holding executive roles who are driving early-market traction and looking to transition their ventures toward long-term operational sustainability. Early-stage startups that have not yet undergone formal institutional investment rounds are encouraged to apply, ensuring the opportunity remains accessible to grassroots business innovators. Successful applicants receive unrestricted, equity-free grant capital alongside opportunities for subsequent follow-on funding and global visibility. Furthermore, victors are integrated into an extensive multi-year acceleration ecosystem that provides world-class mentorship, immersive leadership retreats, and lifelong membership in an international community of impact-driven entrepreneurs.

19. Empowering Young Creators to Drive Social Change Through Art

DONOR: Moonshot Platform GRANT SIZE: $1000 to $10,000

At Grants For Global, we are always eager to highlight initiatives that harness creative expression to address societal polarization and build community resilience. This distinct opportunity champions young creators, authors, and 'artists' who leverage diverse artistic mediums—from visual and auditory to performative and written forms—to bridge divides and inspire collective progress. Eligible participants must be between 15 and 30 years of age by July 1, 2026, and may apply either individually or as part of a collaborative team with original works. Beyond direct financial support, successful applicants gain entry into a robust two-year acceleration programme featuring targeted mentorship, immersive camps, and leadership development designed to elevate both their artistic output and civic impact. Early-stage innovators and social entrepreneurs are encouraged to explore this pathway, though governmental organizations are excluded from applying. For projects involving minors, the award may be officially directed to a legal guardian or responsible sponsoring organization. Our editorial team views this program as a vital platform for nurturing the next generation of culture-shapers who use creativity as a catalyst for meaningful dialogue and inclusion.

20. Advancing Global Documentary Work Through the Ian Parry Photojournalism Grant

DONOR: Ian Parry Memorial Fund GRANT SIZE: $10,000 to $100,000

For our NGO and non-profit readership focused on human rights, environmental advocacy, and documentary storytelling, this established photojournalism grant offers an exceptional avenue for professional growth. The initiative is dedicated to supporting emerging photographers who tackle pressing global concerns, including armed conflict, humanitarian crises, environmental degradation, and the intricacies of the human condition. Applicants must be 24 years of age or younger at the time of entry, or currently enrolled in a full-time photographic course, and can apply from anywhere in the world without geographical restrictions. Selected recipients receive substantial project funding disbursed in installments, alongside a one-year loan of professional photography equipment and invaluable mentorship from renowned industry veterans. Furthermore, participants benefit from expert portfolio reviews and potential access to specialized safety gear and hostile environment training. Entrants must submit a cohesive portfolio of 12 original, unstaged images accompanied by a rigorous project proposal. We at Grants For Global consider this program an essential stepping stone for young visual storytellers seeking to bring critical, underreported global narratives to light.

21. Recognizing Excellence and Social Impact in Global Tourism Through the STREETS Awards

DONOR: STREETS International GRANT SIZE: $1000 to $10,000

As the global tourism and hospitality sectors continue to evolve, spotlighting ventures that prioritize sustainability, ethical practices, and youth development is more critical than ever. The STREETS Awards specifically honor emerging social enterprises, non-profits, and mission-driven organizations up to five years old that demonstrate measurable community impact and transparent financial management. The awards program spans multiple targeted categories, including dedicated tracks for hospitality-driven social enterprises, youth development initiatives in tourism, and early-stage ventures. A standout feature of this opportunity is its mentoring-based application process, which actively assists changemakers in refining their storytelling and impact communication. Every applicant benefits from the process through constructive feedback, industry visibility, and engagement with a distinguished panel of judges. Winners and honorable mentions secure valuable financial support to help scale their operations and deepen their local footprints. Our team at Grants For Global highlights this awards program as a prime model for how industry-specific recognition can successfully drive both commercial viability and social good.

22. Foyle Young Poets of the Year Award: Nurturing International Literary Voices

DONOR: Foyle Foundation (FF)

Encouraging youth literary expression is foundational to building empathetic, articulate global communities, which is why our editorial desk is pleased to feature this renowned annual poetry competition. Open to young writers aged 11 through 17 from across the globe, the initiative invites free submissions of original poems written in English on any theme, allowing participants to weave in phrases from their native languages. While the competition welcomes international entries, participants should note that travel expenses for attending the live award ceremony are not covered. UK-based entrants may submit up to three poems, whereas international participants are permitted one entry, with all submissions kept under a strict forty-line limit. Work must be entirely original, unpublished across any medium—including personal blogs and social media—and free from the use of generative artificial intelligence tools. By providing a global stage for young poets, this program fosters early confidence in creative writing and ensures diverse youth perspectives are celebrated on an international scale.

23. Celebrating Doctoral Excellence in Life Sciences via the Science and SciLifeLab Prize

DONOR: Science & SciLifeLab Prize GRANT SIZE: $10,000 to $100,000

Promoting rigorous scientific inquiry and early-career academic achievement is central to advancing global health and environmental solutions. This prestigious prize recognizes outstanding doctoral thesis work completed by recent PhD graduates across designated life science subject tracks, offering a powerful platform for emerging researchers to share their findings with the world. Selected winners are invited to travel to Sweden to present their research, engage with leading international scientists, and participate in an illustrious award ceremony held at the historic venue of the original Nobel Prize banquets. In addition to global recognition and publication opportunities in a leading academic journal, category and grand prize winners receive significant financial rewards to support their ongoing scientific trajectories. Eligible applicants must have successfully defended their doctoral degrees within a specific two-year window for research conducted during their graduate studies. Grants For Global encourages eligible early-career life scientists to seize this unparalleled opportunity to gain international visibility and connect with the broader scientific community.

24. QS ImpACT Awards: Elevating Youth and Institutional Sustainability Leaders

DONOR: QS ImpACT

Driving measurable progress toward the United Nations Sustainable Development Goals requires dedication from changemakers at every level of society, from grassroots youth groups to major academic institutions. The QS ImpACT Awards celebrate innovative projects and leadership across a diverse array of categories, ranging from climate education and plastic reduction to university sustainability leadership and women's empowerment in the SDG space. Individual applicants aged 18 to 35, alongside eligible universities and organizations, are invited to submit impact reports demonstrating tangible outcomes achieved through their initiatives. Winning participants and institutions unlock substantial prize funding, professional mentorship, digital credentials, and extensive global exposure within an expansive international network. Selected sustainability initiatives are prominently featured across digital platforms and specialized publications, amplifying their reach and inspiring replication worldwide. Our Grants For Global team champions this program for its comprehensive approach to honoring those who successfully transform sustainability concepts into concrete, lasting community impact.

25. Supporting Student-Led Innovations for Child and Youth Welfare

DONOR: Institute for Equality in Development Innovations GRANT SIZE: $10,000 to $100,000

The Institute for Equality in Development Innovations has introduced a dedicated grant program tailored for students who are eager to tackle the challenges of child and youth abuse. This opportunity welcomes original concepts focused either on preventing abuse before it occurs or on delivering direct, survivor-centered assistance that emphasizes autonomy, inclusion, and tangible impact. The open call is remarkably accessible, welcoming learners of all ages, including homeschoolers as well as individuals enrolled in post-secondary institutions, colleges, and universities. Higher education applicants are asked to share their current funding levels to help ensure an equitable distribution of resources. Eligible participants are permitted to submit up to two distinct ideas simultaneously, and particularly impactful projects may have the opportunity to secure ongoing support over time. The evaluation process is designed to move efficiently, with initial submission acknowledgments typically arriving within one week and follow-up interviews generally scheduled within a two-month window. Because interview questions are tailored specifically to each proposal without prior disclosure, applicant teams must be thoroughly prepared to discuss every dimension of their project in depth.

26. Global Leadership Journey for Sustainable Food Systems Transformation

DONOR: Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO)

Applications are officially open for a prestigious international leadership initiative coordinated by the UN Food Systems Coordination Hub with backing from German federal development cooperation. This comprehensive capacity-building journey centers on food systems transformation, climate action, systems thinking, and sustainable development, equipping emerging changemakers to drive impactful reform across their communities and institutions. Throughout the program, participants engage in collaborative peer learning, receive specialized mentorship, and work alongside UN experts to strengthen their advocacy, research, and community action skills. The initiative is specifically tailored for individuals aged 18 to 35 who possess English proficiency and originate from low- and middle-income regions across Africa, Asia-Pacific, and Latin America or the Caribbean. Prospective participants should already have active involvement in food systems, sustainable development, or climate initiatives, alongside a demonstrated commitment to seeing the multi-year program through to its conclusion. The organizers actively welcome participation from young farmers, grassroots entrepreneurs, policy advocates, science communicators, Indigenous representatives, and civil society leaders who want to shape resilient and inclusive food futures.

27. International Recognition and Support for Early-Career STEM Researchers

DONOR: United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization

Nominations are underway for a prestigious biennial international prize dedicated to highlighting the groundbreaking contributions of early-career researchers working across science, technology, engineering, and mathematics. Administered by a prominent international educational and scientific organization in partnership with regional foundations, the award focuses on accelerating STEM research, expanding educational outreach, fostering international scientific cooperation, and championing emerging technologies that advance global sustainable development goals. To ensure balanced global representation, the prize selects five exceptional laureates every two years from major world regions, including Africa, the Arab States, Asia-Pacific, Europe and North America, and Latin America and the Caribbean. Eligible candidates must be under the age of forty by the application deadline and have earned recognition for significant achievements in STEM research, innovation, or regional cooperation. The initiative places a strong emphasis on fostering gender balance, actively encouraging the nomination of talented young women scientists. Because self-nominations are not permitted, candidates must be formally put forward by authorized nominating entities—such as UNESCO Member State governments, official partner NGOs, university departments, or international scientific unions—with each eligible body permitted to submit up to three separate candidate dossiers.

28. Empowering Grassroots Youth Initiatives Across Europe's Outermost Regions

DONOR: European Commission (EC) GRANT SIZE: More than $1 million

A comprehensive regional empowerment initiative has been launched by the European Commission to mobilize and support young people residing in the EU's outermost territories. The program utilizes a bottom-up methodology to fund youth-led actions that enhance local living conditions, foster community participation, promote entrepreneurship, and preserve unique cultural heritage. To achieve these goals, the selected primary beneficiary will manage a structured cascade-funding mechanism, organizing at least two distinct sub-granting streams targeted separately at individual young changemakers and established youth associations. Successful sub-grant projects will receive targeted financial backing for initiatives lasting up to twelve months, accompanied by essential coaching, mentoring, and capacity-building support from the managing entity. Eligible lead applicants must be established legal entities within EU Member States that possess demonstrated connections to the realities of the outermost regions, encompassing the Caribbean-Amaonia, south-west Indian Ocean, and Macaronesia basins. Furthermore, the managing organization must maintain robust operational capacity to process project applications and documentation across multiple languages, including English, French, Portuguese, and Spanish, to effectively serve diverse regional populations.

29. Shaping Africa's Long-Term Trajectory Through Youth Foresight and Creativity

DONOR: African Futures & Innovation Programme

Young African visionaries, thinkers, and creators are invited to contribute their boldest ideas to a prominent continental foresight initiative examining the choices that will define Africa's landscape toward mid-century. Organized by a leading security and futures institute, the open call explores critical themes such as governance, education, technological advancement, climate action, economic transformation, and peacebuilding. The platform showcases emerging leaders who are actively engaging with long-term strategic planning, making it an ideal avenue for students, entrepreneurs, activists, researchers, and community organizers. Applicants do not need prior professional background in futures studies, as the organizers prioritize fresh perspectives, original thinking, and a demonstrable passion for positive societal change. To ensure broad accessibility, submissions can be crafted in various formats—ranging from traditional written essays to engaging video or audio storytelling. Selected participants earn the opportunity to share their insights during a prominent hybrid conference held in Pretoria alongside virtual sessions, serving as a vital space for intergenerational dialogue on the continent's development pathways.

30. Fostering International Youth Cooperation and Solidarity with Ukraine

DONOR: European Youth Foundation (EYF) GRANT SIZE: $10,000 to $100,000

A specialized funding opportunity has been established by the European Youth Foundation of the Council of Europe to bolster international youth-led initiatives that promote human rights, democratic participation, and intercultural solidarity, with an explicit emphasis on involving young people from Ukraine. The program seeks to address the urgent realities faced by Ukrainian youth affected by conflict while advancing broader European priorities such as pluralistic democracy, peaceful coexistence, and inclusive youth work. Eligible projects take the form of international collaborative gatherings—including youth camps, seminars, study visits, and training courses—that are planned and delivered by culturally diverse project teams. To qualify for support, proposed activities must engage participants from a minimum of seven Council of Europe member states, ensure that at least three-quarters of attendees are aged thirty or younger, and actively integrate young people from Ukraine within both the participant group and the organizing team. Projects must also incorporate non-formal education principles, human rights education, accessibility for individuals with disabilities, and a strong commitment to gender equality. Grantees are required to demonstrate cost-effective budgeting, secure complementary co-financing resources from third parties or their own operations, and complete their activities within the established implementation timeframe.

31. Empowering European Youth Through Democratic Action and Human Rights Education

DONOR: European Youth Foundation (EYF) GRANT SIZE: $1000 to $10,000

Our editorial team is tracking an important funding opportunity designed to help organizations across Europe engage young people in critical discussions about democracy, human rights, and active citizenship. This initiative encourages applicants to design educational projects that directly tackle modern hurdles to civic participation, such as digital misinformation, manipulation, fake news, and barriers to political involvement. Eligible organizations can propose workshops, training sessions, and community awareness events aimed at building critical thinking skills and encouraging young people—particularly those with limited prior civic experience—to take part in local democracy. To qualify, proposed projects must ensure that a substantial majority of participants are young individuals who reside within eligible member states, with proper attention dedicated to social inclusion, gender equity, and the involvement of participants with disabilities. Successful grantees are expected to implement their educational activities over a short-term timeframe, relying on a balanced budget that incorporates co-financing from organizational resources or third-party supporters. This program offers a vital pathway for grassroots entities to strengthen youth agency and foster resilient democratic cultures across local communities.

32. Grassroots Platforms for Creative Design and Skills-Based Learning

DONOR: Creative Industries Fund NL GRANT SIZE: $10,000 to $100,000

Our research desk has highlighted an open call supporting collaborative platforms and makers' spaces dedicated to introducing children and young people to the vibrant world of creative design. The program backs grassroots initiatives that broaden access to artistic education—spanning product styling, spatial design, fashion, creative coding, and visual storytelling—while forging clear pathways into the creative sector for emerging makers. Designed for organizations partnering with professional practitioners, the initiative serves participants ranging from primary school students up to young adults refining their professional skills. While formal educational institutions cannot act as lead applicants, they can collaborate outside standard curricula. Selected organizers receive crucial financial backing to run year-long programs, engage in a broader community of practice for peer learning, and foster regional balance in creative outreach. An independent committee reviews submissions based on program design, the caliber of involved makers, accessibility, and long-term ecosystem impact. This opportunity provides a great springboard for independent organizations looking to nurture the next generation of creative talent.

33. Advancing Women in Scientific Research Across the Maghreb

DONOR: L'Oréal Foundation GRANT SIZE: $10,000 to $100,000

Our editorial staff highlights a prestigious recognition program dedicated to celebrating and supporting talented early-career women scientists pursuing advanced research across the Maghreb region. The initiative targets researchers working across diverse scientific disciplines, including life and environmental sciences, earth studies, material sciences, mathematics, computer science, engineering, and technology. By offering dedicated research endowments, the program aims to bolster the visibility and professional trajectory of exceptional women enrolled in doctoral and post-doctoral tracks in Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia, and Libya. Eligible doctoral candidates must be well underway with their thesis research in an accredited laboratory within the region and must apply through a structured online submission process that incorporates academic credentials, publication history, recommendation letters, and a detailed project budget. This milestone edition continues a long-standing tradition of empowering women leaders in STEM, helping recipients advance their laboratory work, build professional networks, and overcome barriers traditionally faced by women in scientific fields.

34. Fostering Digital Skills and Coding Literacy for Underserved Youth

DONOR: TechSoup Europe GRANT SIZE: Less than $1000

Our team is sharing an exciting call for charitable non-profit organizations seeking to bridge the digital divide by delivering free coding and technology workshops for children and youth from marginalized backgrounds. The program focuses on expanding access to foundational digital education—including computer programming, robotics, artificial intelligence, and the Internet of Things—specifically tailored for underserved groups such as refugees, migrants, low-income youth, and participants with disabilities. Eligible non-profits operating within designated European countries must first complete validation through regional network partners before rolling out engaging learning events that align with broader continental tech education weeks. Approved community events must accommodate a minimum number of young participants, provide structured hours of hands-on learning, and operate completely free of charge. Start-up funding can be flexibly applied toward essential event expenses, such as trainer fees, venue rentals, technical licenses, and participant learning materials, enabling organizations to inspire the next generation of tech innovators.

35. Nurturing Young Peacebuilders and Intercultural Dialogue in Central Asia and the Caucasus

DONOR: United Nations Alliance of Civilizations

Our editorial desk features a specialized leadership initiative aimed at empowering the next generation of civil society advocates dedicated to peacebuilding, conflict transformation, and social cohesion. Implemented within a broader regional framework, the program equips young changemakers from the South Caucasus and Central Asia with advanced tools in intercultural dialogue, interfaith understanding, and the prevention of violent extremism. Eligible candidates must be young adults actively engaged in local youth organizations, networks, or peace-focused community initiatives, demonstrating a deep commitment to nonviolence and social diversity. Selected participants embark on a comprehensive learning journey designed to challenge prejudice, strengthen community resilience, and foster cooperative regional networks. Through mentorship and peer exchange, these emerging leaders gain the capacity to design and execute impactful local projects that advance sustainable peace and mutual understanding across their home countries.

36. Enhancing Engagement and Sustainable Development with Arctic Communities

DONOR: European Commission (EC) GRANT SIZE: $100,000 to $500,000

Our research team has reviewed a specialized funding call under European maritime and fisheries frameworks designed to strengthen dialogue, cooperation, and awareness surrounding Arctic communities and Indigenous Peoples. The program encourages collaborative initiatives that empower local entrepreneurship, improve financial literacy, advance Indigenous knowledge systems, and promote sustainable circular economies and blue growth in the Arctic. Eligible applicants include Arctic-focused legal entities—such as organizations representing Indigenous populations, municipal authorities, youth groups, and civil society—established within eligible member states and partner nations. The selected project will receive substantial co-financing to execute impactful activities like policy research, public awareness campaigns, multi-stakeholder workshops, and structured peer-learning dialogues. By bridging the gap between local Arctic stakeholders, Indigenous knowledge holders, and policymakers, this initiative supports balanced regional development, climate resilience, and inclusive economic empowerment.

37. Advancing Global Cultural Policies and Creative Industry Innovation

DONOR: European Commission (EC) GRANT SIZE: More than $1 million

Our editorial team is highlighting a major international research initiative designed to bolster cross-cultural collaboration, sustainable development, and creative industry ecosystems across the globe. This Horizon Europe opportunity encourages civil society organizations, research networks, and cultural institutions to investigate innovative policy models and foster equitable international partnerships. Participating consortia will explore two primary streams: strengthening creative economies that drive sustainable employment and inclusive growth for youth, women, and marginalized groups, or leveraging cultural diplomacy to build global resilience, peaceful coexistence, and dynamic intercultural dialogue. Successful teams will engage in joint knowledge transfer, artistic co-creation, and rigorous capacity building that yields replicable best practices for the sector. To participate, prospective applicants must assemble diverse multi-country partnerships and complete formal institutional registration and validation procedures through the official participant portal prior to final agreement finalization.

38. Investigating Digital Technology's Impact on Youth Education and Well-Being

DONOR: European Commission (EC) GRANT SIZE: More than $1 million

As educational institutions and communities grapple with the rapid integration of technology, this targeted research initiative invites interdisciplinary experts to examine how digital leisure habits influence student development. The program prioritizes empirical investigations into how smartphones, social media platforms, and gaming ecosystems alter academic motivation, attention spans, and overall mental health across primary, secondary, and higher education cohorts. Investigators are encouraged to study behavioral patterns across varied school and home environments, producing actionable, policy-relevant insights that help educators, parents, and policymakers address digital distraction and foster healthier online engagement. Consortium proposals must adopt comprehensive, multi-stakeholder approaches that bridge the gap between academic research, student lived experiences, and media literacy initiatives. Open to a broad spectrum of international academic and research entities, this funding mechanism seeks rigorous scientific evidence to guide future digital guidelines and support inclusive learning environments for all students.

39. Expanding Safer Internet Networks and Digital Resilience for Minors

DONOR: European Commission (EC) GRANT SIZE: More than $1 million

This comprehensive pan-European funding initiative seeks to fortify and expand national support networks dedicated to protecting children and young people in digital environments. Selected organizations will coordinate multi-faceted services that encompass dedicated helplines for mental health support, rapid-response hotlines to eliminate abusive online material, and proactive educational campaigns addressing cyberbullying and emerging technological risks. The program places a strong emphasis on empowering youth through participatory panels, safeguarding vulnerable populations, and reinforcing collaboration with law enforcement agencies and digital service regulators. By fostering robust digital literacy and resilience, participating centers will equip minors, parents, and educators with the critical tools needed to navigate modern online spaces safely. Eligible entities across participating member states are invited to scale up their national infrastructures to ensure comprehensive, cross-border protection and guidance for young digital citizens.

40. Empowering Future Leaders Through the Allan Gray University Fellowship

DONOR: Allan Gray Orbis Foundation

This prestigious youth development initiative offers comprehensive educational support and professional incubation to exceptional university students who demonstrate a profound commitment to ethical leadership and community upliftment. Selected fellows gain access to a transformative entrepreneurial curriculum, individualized mentorship, and a vast collaborative network designed to cultivate responsible value creation across society. The fellowship provides extensive financial backing that covers core academic expenses, residential costs, learning materials, and living stipends, allowing participants to dedicate themselves fully to their personal and professional growth. Designed for ambitious young scholars from specific southern African nations who meet rigorous academic benchmarks in qualifying faculties, the program shapes conscientious changemakers who view entrepreneurship as a powerful vehicle for sustainable social impact. Through immersive workshops, specialized online platforms, and ongoing peer collaboration, fellows build the foundational resilience required to drive meaningful change in their home communities.

41. Accelerating SME Growth and Youth Employment Through Results-Based Grants in Liberia

DONOR: United Nations Development Programme(UNDP) GRANT SIZE: $1000 to $10,000

This performance-oriented funding mechanism provides targeted financial backing to help local enterprises scale their operations, spark innovation, and generate sustainable employment opportunities for young workers. The facility prioritizes high-potential businesses operating within vital modern sectors such as renewable energy, circular economy practices, digital services, and climate-smart agriculture. By tying financial disbursements directly to verified milestones and tangible operational results, the initiative ensures accountability while accelerating broader economic development goals. Beneficiaries receive crucial capital injections alongside structured performance monitoring to help formalize their operations and expand their market reach. Eligible micro, small, and medium enterprises must demonstrate an established operational track record and verified baseline revenues, with special consideration given to businesses led by women, youth, and climate-conscious entrepreneurs committed to inclusive economic transformation.

42. Unlocking Creative Expression via the Queer Futures Arts and Culture Fund

DONOR: Rainbow Giving Australia GRANT SIZE: $10,000 to $100,000

This dedicated funding stream is tailored to champion the creative endeavors and community-building projects conceived by and for young LGBTQIA+SB individuals across the nation. The initiative welcomes a diverse array of artistic disciplines—including visual arts, filmmaking, writing, performance, and digital design—that provide safe outlets for authentic self-expression and cultural storytelling. By investing in youth-led passion projects and emerging cultural practitioners, the program strengthens community bonds and fosters vital social conversations through the arts. Successful applicants receive flexible financial support to execute their creative visions within a structured timeframe while building lasting professional networks. Individual creators, collectives, and community groups that meet the age and residency criteria are encouraged to submit innovative proposals that celebrate queer identities and enrich the broader cultural landscape.

43. Empowering Underrepresented Youth Through Audio Storytelling in the United States

DONOR: Audible GRANT SIZE: $10,000 to $100,000

Our editorial team is closely following an exciting opportunity tailored for small and mid-sized nonprofits across the United States that are eager to harness the power of audio stories. This program seeks organizations dedicated to fostering imagination, discovery, and a deep love of listening among underrepresented young people aged 12 to 18 outside of formal school settings. Selected participants will integrate engaging listening experiences into their ongoing youth development programming, host interactive workshops, and implement structured data collection to measure outcomes. To support these efforts, chosen organizations will gain flexible project resources along with valuable perks such as complimentary digital memberships for their youth participants, onboarding support, and implementation toolkits. Eligible applicants must already maintain established, trusting relationships with the youth they serve and run structured, recurring activities that directly support a targeted number of participants. Additionally, applicants are required to uphold strict data protection and privacy protocols to ensure full compliance with youth safety standards. Organizations with primary political or religious affiliations that dictate the use of project resources are excluded from applying. This initiative provides a wonderful chance for community-based groups to enrich their extracurricular offerings through creative audio media.

44. The SPARK Change-Makers Initiative for Youth Empowerment and Civil Society in Ghana

DONOR: SOS Children's Villages Ghana

Our research desk has highlighted a comprehensive collaborative project operating across six diverse regions of Ghana to bolster youth-led development and social innovation. Co-funded by European partners and spearheaded by local and international organizations, this initiative focuses heavily on vital themes like gender equality, agricultural environmental protection, peace and security, cultural industries, and digital technology. The program is specifically structured to empower young individuals aged 18 to 35 by strengthening their livelihoods and enhancing their civic participation. Eligible youth-focused civil society organizations and social enterprises undergo a rigorous capacity-strengthening phase, gaining access to expert coaching, mentorship, policy advocacy opportunities, and innovation hubs. Those that successfully navigate the initial phases unlock valuable pathways to financial support, enabling them to scale their income-generating activities and community impact. To qualify, applicants must operate directly within the designated regions and demonstrate a genuine commitment to inclusivity, environmental sustainability, and collaborative community engagement. The evaluation framework remains transparent and merit-based, ensuring that diverse grassroots organizations receive a fair opportunity to elevate their organizational capacity. It stands as a robust platform for Ghanaian change-makers seeking to drive sustainable, long-term regional transformation.

45. Supporting Youth and Community Initiatives Through the Youthtown Trust Grant in New Zealand

DONOR: Youthtown Trust GRANT SIZE: $10,000 to $100,000

Our editorial staff is pleased to feature a funding avenue designed to enrich community well-being and youth development throughout New Zealand. This trust-backed program provides vital financial backing to incorporated not-for-profit entities and community groups that deliver impactful programmes, facilities, and activities. The scope of supported initiatives is broad, encompassing amateur youth sports, outdoor recreation, cultural arts such as music and drama, and various community-based support structures. Eligible applicants generally include charitable societies, regional community groups, and legally constituted sporting organizations affiliated with recognized national bodies. Organizations typically submit single annual applications, though successful recipients receiving higher tiers of support may be asked to demonstrate tangible community benefits resulting from the funded activities. Incorporated national organizations can also qualify if they clearly prove that their work yields direct regional and community advantages. By investing in these diverse recreational and social pursuits, the initiative ensures that young people and local neighborhoods have access to environments where they can thrive. It represents a cornerstone of support for grassroots community infrastructure and youth-oriented enrichment across the country.

46. Cultivating Emerging Civic and Political Talent Through the Adenauer Young Leaders Program in the Philippines

DONOR: Konrad-Adenauer-Stiftung (KAS)

Our team at Grants For Global is excited to share a prestigious leadership development opportunity aimed at preparing the next generation of Filipino change-makers for greater governance and community responsibilities. Structured around intensive education in politics, economics, and international relations, the program blends academic learning with practical immersions and learning visits. It is open to Filipino citizens between 25 and 35 years old, as well as younger local government officials seeking to step into more senior leadership roles within their respective sectors. The initiative actively recruits a diverse cohort, welcoming participants from political parties, civil society organizations, media outlets, religious institutions, Indigenous communities, and disadvantaged geographical regions. Applicants must demonstrate fluency in both English and Filipino, alongside a steadfast commitment to integrity, dignity, and inclusivity. Particular emphasis is placed on encouraging women and regional leaders from Mindanao and the Bangsamoro region to put forward their candidacies. By building a strong, values-driven network of public and private sector participants, the program strengthens the foundation of civic leadership and governance throughout the nation.

47. Advancing Civic Space, Rural Participation, and Youth Voter Education in Mongolia

DONOR: British Embassy Ulaanbaatar GRANT SIZE: $10,000 to $100,000

Our editorial desk has tracked an important call for proposals issued by diplomatic missions in Ulaanbaatar to bolster civic participation and democratic engagement in Mongolia. This funding opportunity is split into distinct focal areas aimed at expanding rural civil society networks and empowering young audiences through targeted voter education. The first component focuses on strengthening local civil society organizations so they can effectively monitor elections, track public commitments, and hold authorities accountable. The second component empowers youth-led organizations to design accessible, non-partisan voter education programs and public debates tailored specifically for young and rural demographics. Registered non-profit organizations and consortia capable of implementing nationwide activities—particularly in remote areas—are invited to submit comprehensive project proposals. Selected initiatives are expected to roll out over a substantial implementation window, providing ample time for deep community engagement and impact measurement. Successful applicants must exhibit strong local knowledge, innovative outreach strategies, value for money, and rigorous risk management protocols to maintain absolute non-partisanship. This is a critical endeavor for safeguarding open civic space and fostering an informed, active electorate among the country's youth.

48. Empowering Newfoundland and Labrador Youth Through the Grants to Youth Organizations Program in Canada

DONOR: Government of Newfoundland and Labrador GRANT SIZE: $10,000 to $100,000

Our research team is shining a spotlight on a provincial funding opportunity dedicated to uplifting youth-serving not-for-profit organizations in Newfoundland and Labrador. The program focuses on fostering youth skill development, leadership, social inclusion, and active participation in community life through special seasonal projects. Funded initiatives must be implemented between September and March, ensuring that young people benefit from structured opportunities that ease their transition into adulthood. Eligible applicants must demonstrate meaningful youth engagement at every stage of the project cycle, from initial planning and design to final delivery. While major facility upgrades, travel-heavy projects, and activities scheduled during the peak summer months are excluded, small-scale improvements necessary for program execution can be considered. The program prioritizes proposals that actively address unmet community barriers, encourage intergenerational relationship building, and champion accessibility. Administrative expenses not directly tied to project delivery, general payroll, and utility costs are strictly ineligible for support. Through this targeted investment, local nonprofits receive the necessary backing to help young participants build lasting confidence, skills, and community connections.

49. Empowering Youth Leadership and Innovation in Manurewa

DONOR: Auckland Council GRANT SIZE: $1000 to $10,000

Our editorial team is excited to highlight this valuable opportunity for community leaders, educators, and young visionaries in the Manurewa Local Board area. This program is specifically designed to champion youth development by fostering civic engagement, enhancing health and wellbeing, and unlocking essential pathways to sustainable employment. Eligible participants can secure vital resources for educational fees, specialized training conferences, technology access, and grassroots social enterprise projects. The initiative directly targets individuals within a specific age bracket who maintain a demonstrated connection to the local region as citizens or permanent residents. To ensure applications are robustly backed, candidates must submit a formal recommendation letter from a trusted community figure, educator, or employer. This mechanism guarantees that selected initiatives are genuinely grounded in community trust and have strong local backing. We encourage our network to explore how this targeted support can help bridge opportunity gaps and elevate the voices of the next generation in Aotearoa New Zealand.

50. Advancing Children and Youth Arts Projects Across Ireland

DONOR: The Arts Council GRANT SIZE: $100,000 to $500,000

Our editorial desk is pleased to feature a prestigious annual arts initiative aimed at enriching the cultural landscape for children and young people across the Republic of Ireland. This opportunity empowers professional artists, creative groups, and established cultural organizations to conceptualize and execute imaginative artistic works tailored to specific developmental stages. The scope of support spans early childhood engagement, pivotal transition years, and vital connections for emerging artists, ensuring a comprehensive continuum of creative expression. Strategic priorities emphasize leadership from diverse cultural backgrounds, active participation by individuals with disabilities, and meaningful youth consultation throughout every phase of project delivery. Applicants must demonstrate a strong professional track record while proposing original, cross-disciplinary, or single-artform projects that elevate youth perspectives. While standard institutional recipients of certain recurring cultural subsidies are excluded, the scheme offers a transformative platform for practitioners dedicated to impactful community arts. We urge eligible creators and organizations to carefully review the specific strand guidelines and submit their ambitious proposals before the approaching summer deadline.

51. Celebrating Tasmania's Inspiring Young Women Leaders

DONOR: Tasmanian Government

Our research team shines a spotlight on a prominent regional recognition program designed to honor the exceptional achievements, dedication, and potential of young women throughout Tasmania. This initiative captures a remarkably diverse spectrum of professional and community contributions, spanning agriculture, environmental stewardship, human rights, public service, emerging sciences, and grassroots advocacy. Divided into distinct age tiers, the program ensures that achievements from adolescence through early adulthood are appropriately acknowledged and amplified across regional media channels. Eligibility extends to individuals identifying as young women, including transgender and non-binary participants, who have maintained residency in the state for a sustained period. The review committees actively welcome nominations from Aboriginal leaders, individuals with disabilities, regional and rural residents, and diverse multicultural or queer communities. Anyone may submit a detailed nomination outlining the candidate's impact, provided appropriate parental consent is secured for minors. We view this celebration as a powerful catalyst for visibility, inspiring broader community engagement and mentoring future generations of changemakers.

52. Overcoming Financial Barriers for Young Talent in Cornwall and Scilly

DONOR: Cornwall Community Foundation GRANT SIZE: $1000 to $10,000

Our editorial team draws attention to a specialized regional fund crafted to support exceptionally gifted young people in Cornwall and the Isles of Scilly who face economic hardship or disability. Navigating the path to excellence in sports or the arts often involves prohibitive expenses, from specialized equipment and training fees to travel costs and competition entry fees. This initiative steps in to remove these financial roadblocks, ensuring that raw talent and dedication are never stifled by personal or socioeconomic circumstances. Designed for residents within a specific youth demographic, the fund prioritizes applicants who can clearly articulate both their extraordinary capability and their urgent financial need. Successful candidates receive targeted financial awards dedicated strictly to approved development expenses, keeping every project focused squarely on talent progression. By easing these fiscal pressures, the program champions equity and accessibility within competitive creative and athletic fields. We encourage eligible young practitioners and their families in the region to examine the criteria and apply for this crucial stepping stone.

53. Driving Youth Entrepreneurship and STEAM Innovation in Lesotho

DONOR: United Nations Development Programme (UNDP)

Our editorial board is thrilled to spotlight a comprehensive national initiative spearheaded to empower youth across Lesotho through enterprise development and scientific innovation. Operating under dual streams focusing on seasoned entrepreneurs and forward-thinking STEAM innovators, the program addresses critical gaps in market access, capacity building, and essential financing. Participants receive intensive mentorship and business development support tailored to transform unique concepts into sustainable, market-ready enterprises. The framework aligns closely with national development priorities and global sustainability targets, encouraging solutions within vital sectors such as agriculture, renewable energy, manufacturing, and health. Open to young changemakers from every district in the country, the initiative values diversity, inclusion, and localized problem-solving. By dismantling traditional barriers to youth-led economic growth, this collaborative effort lays a resilient foundation for future prosperity. We highly recommend that innovative founders and business builders in the region engage with this transformative capacity-building opportunity.

54. Empowering Emerging Documentarians Through the Young Photographer Award

DONOR: Visura

Our research team presents an exceptional professional development opportunity for early-career visual storytellers and photojournalists based in Uganda. This immersive program offers selected participants an intensive mentorship bootcamp, pairing aspiring artists with seasoned industry professionals to refine their documentary practice and conceptual storytelling. Fellows embark on a guided journey to produce original visual projects, culminating in a prestigious public exhibition in Kampala that elevates their work within the national arts community. Applicants are expected to demonstrate deep passion through a thoughtful motivation letter, a detailed project concept, and a curated portfolio accompanied by rigorous contextual captions. Tailored specifically for citizens within a defined age cohort, the initiative champions authentic local narratives and technical mastery in documentary photography. We believe this platform serves as an invaluable catalyst for emerging creative voices seeking to make a lasting impact through visual media. Eligible photographers are encouraged to prepare their submissions carefully before the July deadline.

55. Empowering Young Social Entrepreneurs through Global Incubation and Mentoring

DONOR: Social Impact Award GRANT SIZE: $1000 to $10,000

This dedicated incubation initiative invites applications from aspiring young innovators who want to transform early-stage social enterprise ideas into viable, impact-driven ventures. The program centers heavily on comprehensive mentoring, idea validation, business and impact model creation, prototype development, customer acquisition, and overall startup innovation support. By connecting participants with a global community of peers and industry experts, the initiative strengthens both the long-term sustainability and the social footprint of emerging projects. Selected youth entrepreneurs gain invaluable access to specialized coaching, high-profile recognition, global leadership summits, and an expansive international alumni network. To qualify, applicants must be aged between 18 and 29 and present unimplemented or very early-stage ideas that lack heavy external backing. The competitive selection process involves strict eligibility checks, rigorous jury reviews by both public and private sector leaders, and constructive feedback for all participants. First-time founders aiming to tackle pressing global challenges through scalable solutions will find this an exceptional platform to accelerate their entrepreneurial journey.

56. Advancing Community Inclusion and Anti-Racism Through Canadian Initiative Grants

DONOR: Canadian Race Relations Foundation GRANT SIZE: $1000 to $10,000

Community organizations and youth groups across Canada are invited to apply for financial support aimed at dismantling systemic racial barriers and fostering broad intercultural inclusion. The funding prioritizes critical areas such as reducing institutional discrimination in education, healthcare, employment, and public services, alongside expanding public research, evidence-gathering, and policy awareness on race relations. Supported activities can take the form of educational conferences, youth-led summits, collaborative workshops, cultural festivals, public exhibits, and reconciliation dialogues designed to deepen cross-cultural understanding. Eligible applicants encompass a diverse range of entities including registered charities, non-profits, Indigenous organizations, municipal and provincial public institutions, grassroots collectives, recognized student bodies, and labor unions. Commercial enterprises, federal institutions, individual applicants, and politically focused entities are strictly excluded from applying for this funding stream. Through localized community participation, successful projects will help build robust intercultural bridges and advance equity across regional and national landscapes.

57. Empowering Namibian MSMEs to Drive Regional Innovation and Job Creation

DONOR: Namibia Investment Promotion and Development Board

A newly launched enterprise development call aims to strengthen micro, small, and medium-sized enterprises throughout all fourteen regions of Namibia by boosting competitiveness, technological innovation, and local employment. Implemented in close collaboration with prominent national and international partners, the program places special emphasis on nurturing sustainability, value addition, export potential, and inclusive economic growth. Priority is deliberately given to visionary enterprises that are led by women and youth, ensuring that marginalized business owners receive the structural backing they need to scale successfully. To be considered, applicants must operate formal businesses that are fully registered and compliant with relevant national authorities, maintain a functional commercial bank account, and demonstrate at least one year of active operational history. Furthermore, candidates must present a viable business model supported by tangible evidence of ongoing commercial activity, such as an existing product, service, or prototype. This strategic initiative serves as a vital catalyst for transforming promising local businesses into resilient pillars of the regional economy.

58. Building Financial Confidence and Digital Resilience for Vulnerable Communities in Belgium

DONOR: King Baudouin Foundation GRANT SIZE: $10,000 to $100,000

This funding opportunity invites impact-driven initiatives designed to enhance financial literacy, confidence, and long-term resilience among economically and socially vulnerable populations in Belgium. Supported projects focus on promoting financial inclusion, safeguarding individuals from financial exploitation, teaching practical budgeting and savings skills, and advancing digital financial literacy for safe online money management. The initiative specifically targets individuals facing severe socio-economic hurdles, including school drop-outs, special education youth, migrants, non-native speakers, persons with disabilities, older adults with limited digital skills, and individuals experiencing homelessness or unstable self-employment. Eligible applicant organizations include non-profits, youth associations, social welfare groups, community initiatives, schools, civic education services, and residential care facilities, while commercial companies, political bodies, trade unions, and local public authorities are ineligible. Successful applicants are encouraged to utilize existing educational tools and establish clear performance metrics to maximize the profound social impact of their financial empowerment programs.

59. Supporting Community Quality of Life via Trustee-Backed Operating Grants

DONOR: Roy A. Hunt Foundation GRANT SIZE: $1000 to $10,000

Philanthropic resources are being made available to non-profit organizations dedicated to uplifting community well-being through flexible operating support and vital direct service programs. The funding scope embraces diverse civic sectors, including community development, environmental protection, youth violence prevention, urban farming, international development, inclusion initiatives, and support programs for military veterans. The foundation executes its grantmaking through two distinct pathways, offering targeted initiative support for specific results alongside broader general operating grants for invited organizations. Preference is overwhelmingly given to entities operating within the specific geographic regions where the foundation's trustees live, work, or maintain familial connections. Organizations seeking consideration for the first time or wishing to propose major new initiatives must submit a concise preliminary inquiry through the online portal. By backing organizations capable of producing measurable community impact, the program helps sustain essential grassroots services and long-term social progress.

60. Coordinating Multi-Center Clinical Research on Pediatric Obesity Treatments

DONOR: National Institutes of Health GRANT SIZE: $500,000 to $1 million

A specialized national health initiative seeks to establish a centralized coordinating hub to guide and support a collaborative clinical research consortium focused on anti-obesity medication strategies for children and adolescents. The overarching mission is to identify safe, effective treatment protocols that optimize physical and psychological development, promote healthy nutritional habits, encourage physical activity, and enhance overall quality of life for youth. Key research priorities include determining the ideal developmental timing for initiating medication, evaluating optimal dosages and treatment durations, and assessing accompanying lifestyle interventions to reduce the likelihood of lifelong medical dependency. The chosen coordinating center will shoulder critical administrative and leadership responsibilities, including statistical design, centralized data harmonization, biospecimen coordination, database management, and cross-site scientific dissemination. Eligible applicant types span higher education institutions, tribal governments, local public entities, health-focused nonprofits, and various business organizations. Ultimately, the consortium aims to generate robust clinical evidence that equips healthcare providers to safely manage pediatric obesity while fostering enduring health outcomes.

61. Strengthening Bilateral Cooperation: Public Diplomacy Small Grants in Jamaica

DONOR: U.S. Mission to Jamaica GRANT SIZE: $10,000 to $100,000

At Grants For Global, our team is closely tracking this initiative designed to foster meaningful collaboration between the United States and Jamaica through targeted community projects. Operating under a comprehensive strategic framework, the programme backs efforts that boost economic competitiveness via technological and scientific education, reinforce democratic resilience through youth civic engagement and governance fellowships, and advance national security through media literacy and public dialogue. Eligible entities—ranging from non-profit civil society organizations and think tanks to educational institutions and public bodies—are encouraged to design interventions that yield measurable, innovation-driven results. By targeting key societal groups including students, educators, and local leaders, the programme aims to cement long-term bilateral ties while addressing shared regional challenges. Applicants proposing projects within the established financial boundaries can secure vital support to bring their strategic vision to life, ensuring communities across Jamaica benefit directly from collaborative growth and engagement.

62. Connecting Underserved Youth with Nature: Community Grants Across the UK

DONOR: The Ernest Cook Trust GRANT SIZE: Less than $1000

Our editorial team highlights this valuable funding pathway designed for charities and non-profit organizations striving to bridge the gap between young people and the great outdoors. Operating within designated regional postcodes, the grant specifically targets groups supporting individuals navigating social, economic, or physical disadvantages, enabling them to experience meaningful environmental learning. Funding is structured across three primary pillars to eliminate common outdoor participation barriers: enhancing community green spaces and acquiring environmental study materials, covering travel expenses for educational excursions to natural settings, and outfitting participants with appropriate weather-resistant gear. Eligible groups—including registered charities, community interest companies, and similar non-profits with robust safeguarding policies and independent management committees—can utilize these resources to transform local landscapes like allotment gardens and woodland areas into vibrant outdoor classrooms. By investing in these essential logistical and experiential needs, the opportunity empowers organizations to foster lasting environmental stewardship and personal growth among teenagers and young adults.

63. Driving Youth-Led Community Transformation: The Horowhenua Empowerment Fund

DONOR: Horowhenua District Council GRANT SIZE: $1000 to $10,000

Our research desk is excited to present this continuous funding opportunity tailored for young changemakers in New Zealand seeking to drive positive local and global impact. The initiative invites eligible youth to spearhead innovative community projects or pursue individual personal development milestones, supported by an accessible annual resource pool and dedicated mentorship from council specialists. Young leaders based in the designated district can apply for group-oriented community grants or smaller individual awards for personal growth, provided their initiatives demonstrate clear timelines, sustainable benefits, and measurable community value. Applicants must collaborate with an established institutional fund-holder, such as a school or local organization, and submit a brief introductory video showcasing their proposed efforts. While religious and overtly political activities are excluded, the fund places a strong emphasis on leadership development, cultural inclusion, and projects capable of leaving a lasting legacy well beyond the active implementation period.
